

Equine Partners CIC Website policies

What is accessibility?

The aim of an accessible website is for it to be easy to use by people with a variety of disabilities. These include users who cannot use a mouse to navigate around the site. Therefore access keys may be added at a later date. These allow the user to press one letter on the keyboard to access the pages. This site should also work as a text only site to make it easier to read for the visually impaired, mechanisms to allow the text to be enlarged are built into most browsers. These pages validate via the W3C Validator and assessed to make sure they are accessible to users with disabilities according to Wave.webaim. Please contact info@equinepartners.co.uk for attention of Jo if you have any difficulty using this site. There are good guidelines on the BBC website – My Web My Way.
